KASAMA CAMPAIGN RESPONDS TO MACK'S DESPERATE ATTACK OVER ROUTINE PAPERWORK

Albert Mack, a former Hillary Clinton supporter, turns to misleading attacks as his campaign loses ground

LAS VEGAS, NV — The Kasama for Clark County Commission campaign today set the record straight on Albert Mack's desperate attacks on Heidi Kasama, calling the effort a transparent distraction by a candidate embarrassed by his own record.

The facts are straightforward: These LLCs were handled by Heidi's husband Peter, a CPA, as part of his professional responsibilities. When Peter became seriously ill and was unable to work, Heidi stepped in to file the necessary paperwork on his behalf. Neither Heidi nor Peter holds any financial stake in these entities. Prior accountants who have held public office have not listed this type of accounting services on their disclosures. Kasama's campaign is proactively seeking guidance from the Nevada Secretary of State's office to ensure full compliance with all applicable reporting standards.

"This is a non-issue manufactured by a candidate who has nothing substantive to offer Clark County voters," said Jeremy Hughes, Kasama campaign spokesman. "Heidi filed the paperwork, made no income from her accounting services to these entities, and is doing everything by the book. The fact that Albert Mack is spending his time on this tells you everything about the state of his campaign."

The attack is also flatly contradicted by Kasama's record. Governor Joe Lombardo, who endorsed Kasama for this race, said: "Heidi Kasama led the fight for ethics reform in the state legislature and is a champion of greater transparency in government — exactly the kind of leader we need on the Clark County Commission." Clark County Commissioner April Becker echoed that assessment: "She has championed ethics reform to address the culture of corruption in Carson City. With her background as an accountant and her experience working on the state budget, Heidi is the perfect fit for the commission."

Voters should also consider the source. Albert Mack was a supporter of Hillary Clinton — a record he has quietly tried to walk away from as he courts Republican primary voters. Rather than answer for his own political history, Mack has chosen to manufacture controversy where none exists.
